

Crazy Gander

M106

Tummy tickling fun of rocking it out again and again. Crazy Gander is inviting with bright colours and support for young bodies. Universal design supports the back, calf and foot supports, the shelter of the seat sides and the vertical handholds make it accessible and usable for all. Children rock the Crazy Gander using their leg, arm, and core muscles to coordinate movements and set it into motion. Alternatively, the spring will move when children stem their back into the seat, without using leg muscles. The hand-holds support a relevant grip height for all. Rocking the Crazy Gander supports the senses of balance and space, which are fundamental for body confidence and movement control. The spring's response to movement builds an understanding of cause-and-effect. It supports logical thinking, a fundamental cognitive skill.

Handhold

Physical: opens more hold positions and ensures good grip, necessary for rocking intensely which trains hand and arm muscles.

Foot and back support

Physical: extra back and foot support for children with disabilities. Rocking promotes sense of balance and space. Arms and leg muscles are strengthened.

Theme

Cognitive: suggests a theme and supports dramatic play, which stimulates language and communication skills.

Rocking spring

Physical: response to movements adds to spatial awareness and sense of balance which are fundamental motor skills.

Cognitive: trains the understanding of cause and effect: when I move my body, the spring responds with movement.

The overall framework applied for these factors is the Environmental Product Declaration (EPD), which quantifies "environmental information on the life cycle of a product and enable comparisons between products fulfilling the same function" (ISO, 2006). This follows the structure and applies a Life-Cycle Assessment approach to the entire Product stage from raw material through manufacturing (A1-A3))
