The Seesaw 4 Seats is a playground classic. It still attracts players again and again, as it has for generations. The archaic play event is still with us for a reason: the tickling in the stomach when going up high, going down fast is eternally appealing. The Seesaw 4 Seats develops the sense of space and rhythm and leg muscles of children. These are crucial motor skills that help children navigate the world securely, e.g. in the street when estimating time, movement and objects. The social dimension and degree of trust in your peer that is demanded when seesawing, is great training of social-emotional life skills such as turn-taking and cooperation. With four users, empathy is trained, too. Players will need to consider others' limits and limitations. Especially in groups of four, the seesawing is a fantastic social play event.

Handhold

Physical: the possibility to hold on tight enables intense rocking. This trains the hand and arm muscles.

Rocking movement

Physical: response to movements adds to spatial awareness and sense of balance. These are fundamental motor skills that help the child's ability to sit still on a chair which takes a good sense of balance. Cognitive: trains the understanding of cause and effect: when I move my body, the spring responds with movement.

Double seating option

Social-Emotional: the possibility of two rocking together supports cooperation skills. Furthermore, the physical contact with others is great for the well-being of children, measurable in lower cortisol (stress hormone) levels.

The overall framework applied for these factors is the Environmental Product Declaration (EPD), which quantifies "environmental information on the life cycle of a product and enable comparisons between products fulfilling the same function" (ISO, 2006). This follows the structure and applies a Life-Cycle Assessment approach to the entire Product stage from raw material through manufacturing (A1-A3))
